Portugal's government has announced the outcome of an energy storage tender that will see the installation of 500 MW of energy storage capacity to support the country's energy transition. Energy storage battery. Photo by Anna Vasileva

How much battery capacity will Portugal have by 2030?

Similarly, the draft update of Portugal's NECP aims for 1 GW of installed battery capacity by 2030. The emphasis on batteries is particularly striking. Spain's target for battery storage exceeds 9 GW by 2030.

Should energy storage be democratised in Portugal?

Energy storage is therefore essential if EU targets are to be met. Portugal's installed energy storage capacity is still predominantly based on hydro pumping, which currently stands at 4,164 GW year. However, this paradigm is about to change with the democratisation of energy storage solutions through wind and solar production.

How many GWh of electricity are generated in Portugal in 2023?

Between 1 January and 31 October 2023, 35,152 GWh of electricity were generated on the Portuguese mainland, of which 67.8 per cent came from renewable sources. The storage will be decisive for the long-awaited energy transition.

Why is energy storage important in Portugal?

Therefore essential to meet European targets. Energy storage installed capacity in Portugal is still predominantly based on hydropower pumping, which is today over 3 GW, and will increase to 4,164 GW when the Alto-Tmega dam is completed this year. However, this paradigm is about to shift with the democratization of energy storage

How to build a storage facility in Portugal?

The first step in the construction of a new storage facility is to secure the proper use or rights over the land where the installation is to be developed. Under Portuguese law, various options are available to do this. The four most common ways to secure plots of land are: Operating lease (cessão de exploração), in case of common land.
